IN HONOR OF LINCOLN.

President Roosevelt Delivers an Address at Hodgenville, Ky.---Schools Close, Business Houses Shut Down; the Day Generally Observed.

A Fire in the Morris Packing Plant in Kansas City---Another California Flood---Thirty-Five Cases of Smallpox in William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo.

[By Associated Press.]

For Kansas: Unsettled weather, with rain or snow late to-night or Saturday; colder to-night in east portion. Atchison temperature at 7 a. m., 40; at 2 p. m., 24.

In Honor of Lincoln.

Hodgenville, Ky., Feb. 12.—Reverent and curious Americans, to the number of several thousand, to-day dedicated a monument to the man in whom liberty wrought her last great miracle. The present head of the nation, the governor of Kentucky, Lincoln's native state; two eminent leaders in the struggle through which Lincoln brought forth the nation reunited and free; another, late governor of the state, riven like Kentucky, between the fires of sectional devotion and duty; all these and a host of others in the forefront of American life, joined in the act of consecration. Shortly before noon, the train bearing Roosevelt and the members of his party, pulled in, and, when the distinguished citizens alighted, the air was cracked with cheers. When the president and party entered carriages reserved for them, and a band and company of militia formed ahead of them, the parade was ready to move on to the cabin site, three miles from the depot. The cabin itself was set in a casket of flowers, the gift of school children of Kentucky. The parade drew up at the side of the cabin and the governor, President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and members of the centenary committee, took seats on the platform near the flower-mantled cabin. Close to this lay the cornerstone of Memorial temple in its bed of mortar. Following an impressive invocation, ex-Governor Folk, of Missouri, uttored some introductory remarks. He was followed by the president, who spread cement on the broad side of the cornerstone, as it was raised in place. The president yielded to Governor Wilson, who spoke on behalf of Kentucky for her greatest son. Senator Grant Wilson and Gen. Luke E. Wright followed with a few words.

This afternoon the president and other dignitaries will board a train for Louisville, and the ceremonies will be ended.

[The president's address in full will be found on Page 6.]

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Fifty public meetings, the city fairly buried beneath flags, bunting and portraits of Lincoln, the streets crowded with marchers and bands, is the spectacle Chicago presented to-day in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Lincoln.

The principal demonstration was held at the Auditorium, where the orator was Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university.

Topeka, Kas., Feb 12—The legislature is observing Lincoln's birthday anniversary to-day. The legislators left this morning for Lawrence where they are guests of the state university.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12.—This place, the home and burial place of Lincoln, is profusely decorated with the national colors and with pictures of the great emancipator. French Ambassador Jusserand, British Ambassador Bryce Hon. William Jennings Bryan, Hon. David R. Francis, of St Louis, and many other prominent public and business men are guests of the city.

To-day's exercises include a monster mass meeting this afternoon with addresses by Ambassadors Jusserand and Bryce and William J. Bryan.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Except for the proceedings of the lower house of congress, where Lincoln's Gettysburg speech was read, the wheels of the government are stopped in honor of Lincoln's anniversary.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 12.—As a semi-official holiday, Little Rock is observing Lincoln's anniversary. Offices are closed, and schools given a half holiday. A banquet at $1 a plate will be given to-night. Judge Joseph W. House, a prominent ex-Confederate veteran will act as toastmaster.

Taft Wants Knox.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Taft has telegraphed Senator Hale, urging congress to remove all doubt of Knox's eligibility to the office of secretary of state, saying the loss of Knox from the cabinet would be a public misfortune.

House leaders favorable to the adoption of the Senate bill, reducing the salary of secretary of state to $8,000, in order to make Senator Knox eligible for the position, have evolved a scheme to avoid sending the bill to the house committee on judiciary, which is said to be opposed to the measure.

The bill was not offered to the committee when the house met to-day, and, in explanation, it leaked out that the committee on election of president and vice-president intended to report a bill covering the same subject. This would make it possible to substitute the House measure for that of the Senate, and no reference to the committee would be necessary.

A Packing House Fire.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 12.—Forty young women employed in the laundry department of the Morris & Co.'s packing plant in Kansas City, Kas., narrowly escaped with their lives when fire broke out in the second floor of the plant early this afternoon. The girls were at lunch on the third floor, and, before they were aware of the fire, the lunch room was filled with smoke. The company's fire drill was useless, and the employes rushed out in a panic. All, however, escaped in safety. The fire practically destroyed the interior of the laundry building. No estimate of the loss has been made.

A Diplomat in Trouble.

Santiago, Chile, Feb. 12.—Chancellor Beckert, of the German legation at Santiago, has been arrested at Chillan, province of Nuble.

The office of the German legation at Santiago was destroyed by fire February 5. The charred body of a man found in the ruins was believed to be that of Beckert, but examination showed it was not Beckert, and that nine thousand dollars had been taken from the office safe.

Wireless From the Fleet.

New York, Feb. 12—A wireless message from the tender Yankton, which is preceding the Atlantic battleship fleet on the way home, was picked up early to-day by the wireless station at Fire Island. The message gives the location by latitude and longitude, and concludes: "Fine weather; cruise is uneventful." In longitudinal position the ships last night were about twenty miles south of the Azores.

Another California Flood.

San Francisco, Feb. 12.—Cities and towns in the Sacramento valley have been notified to prepare for a repetition of the damaging storm of a month ago Melting snows and a tremendous volume of water in the Sierra Nevada mountains are expected to test the strength of the levees along the river's course, and the earliest reports from the threatened sections indicate to-day will not a rise of the flood waters.

His Source of Information.

Washington, Feb 12.—A sensation was created in the house to-day when Mr. Lovering, of Massachusetts, charged that Rainey's allegations regarding the Panama canal sale were based upon New York World information, derived from ex-convicts and blackmailers.

A Cradle Robber Kills.

San Francisco, Feb. 12.—Dorothy Mankanoff, 10 years old, was shot and killed to-day by Emetry Broughousen, a young laborer, who had been driven from the Mankanoff household for paying attention to the child. Broughousen then shot and killed himself.

Feeding Taft.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 12.—The reception to Taft having been well accomplished, all energies are directed today toward the final details of the banquet to-night. To-day being Friday, fish will be a notable feature of the dinner.

The first test of strength between the friends and the enemies of good roads came in the senate yesterday when the Hodges "rock road" bill came up for consideration in committee of the whole. The friends of good roads won by a vote of 18 to 12, and the bill was reported out for passage. From this vote it is assumed that practically all of the good roads legislation will go through the senate. The test vote came when Brewster, of Doniphan, after the bill had been under consideration about half an hour, moved to postpone its consideration to some future time. The Hodges rock road bill provides that whenever a majority along the line of a road shall petition the county commissioners for a permanent road improvement the commissioners are to improve the road The petition of the land holders is to state the name of the road to be improved, the distance of improvement, the kind of improvement and the number of annual assessments, not exceeding ten. After the petition has been filed the commissioners shall have an accurate survey of the road made by the county surveyor or other competent surveyors and a careful estimate shall be made of the cost of the improvement. To pay for the new road the commissioners shall issue special improvement bonds to bear 6 per cent or less. The work is to be paid for in this manner: Three-quarters of the cost by the owners of the tracts of land in the beneficial district and one-quarter by the townships at large in which the improvement is made. Bridges and culverts are to be built by the county. The law does not apply to the construction of roads costing less than $1,000 a mile.

Still Waters.

The dashing, handsome Algernon,
With keen delight for any fun,
Approached the shy Miss Annabel
And softly said, "Now, will you tell
If you prefer"— And, with a smile,
He whispered for some little while
Then asked she with a simple laugh,
"You wish an answer to your chaff?"
She cast down her sweet, pensive eyes
And simpered, to his great surprise.
"Two strings to my bow or two beaus
A bird in the hand is the only thing."

—New York Herald.

Had Sandy Guessing.

"Man Sandy, is that ye?" exclaimed in surprise an old man in the street the other day. "Man, I thocht ye were deed. I heard ye were drooned!"

"Oh, no It wasna me," returned Sandy solemnly. "It was ma brither."

"Dear me! Dear me!" murmured the old man. "Whut a terrible pity!"

There was a somewhat thoughtful look on Sandy's face as he wandered away.

Making Things Safe.

"Improvidence," the old man said,
"I do abhor.
I want my son when I am dead
Provided for.
But bonds may slump and nothing pay.
I'm looking for a surer way."

"I'll fix it up," was next his cry,
"And fix it well!
Just what securities to buy
I cannot tell
To make things safe when I am dust
I'll put a ton of coal in trust."

—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"A Widow" writes The Globe in reply to Dod Gaston's statement that he is a bachelor because he is afraid if he married he would be picked to death: "Dod Gaston's Bachelor Notes in The Globe attracted my thoughtful attention. Ever a friend to woman I do not think he has formulated a just impression of the sex. I do know that there are pretty omen who seem to desire much of their husband's time, and are unhappy when he is away from them. But my observations have proved in the case of intimate friends that there was always a little jarring between the two. The husband who was nagged spent his time away from home on every small pretext, loafing about town with men. The wife suspected this and consequently became very unhappy and it offended him. Was it not his fault? By the looks of the strong hearty men on the streets not many of them are being kept at home, and perhaps it would be better for them if they were. A bachelor's conception of woman can never be just, and, considering his sins against the sex, he ought never to be guilty of uttering a wail against them. I have some bachelor friends and some widower friends, and I cast my verdict in favor of the widowers every time. A bachelor wins a woman's affection knowing full well he is too selfish to return it. After awhile with his scarlet life he tires of her, and would blot her and her love out of his life; another has entered it. But the old ties, while wearying, are a little hard to break, and then comes in his wrong to the woman what he calls her nagging, but which is only an appeal for him to do justice to her. I often think of the seals in the frozen seas how they serve their bachelors. Why, they simply isolate them. The males who prefer matrimony get together and drive the old bachelors on an island and keep them there until the mating season is over. It might be a good thing for society, if, in addition to levying a tax on the bachelor, he were isolated. It is my opinion that he has a few sins against our sex to answer for on the great judgment day."

Hi. Green lately paid 25 cents to advertise a Jersey cow in The Globe. A man at Kirwin came in and bought it, and paid $11 to ship the cow to Kirwin. The railroad company gave the cow and her calf a car to themselves, and the price was only $14.

There were at least a dozen roasts in The Globe's mail to-day for Dod Gaston, of the Topeka Capital, who gave his reasons in The Globe last night for remaining a bachelor. And, at every gathering in town where there were women, enough heat was applied to Mr. House to cook him good and plenty.

There is a great deal in hope. A man arrived in Atchison yesterday to be treated for consumption, locomotor ataxia, rheumatism, asthma and hay fever. He has all these diseases, and is still hopeful. A reputable physician informs The Globe that it is really true that the man has all the diseases named.

There was a box social held last night at the school house in district 14, across the road from St. Patrick's church. It was hoped to make $10 with which to buy a dictionary, but the bidding was unexpectedly lively, and a farmer who is in town to-day says the receipts were $90. And now the teacher doesn't know what to do with the money.

Last Wednesday night, the Colgan boys, living north of town, attended a dance. When they returned home at 1:30 a. m., they found a strange man loafing about their house. They ordered him to move on, whereupon he sneaked into the stable, and went to sleep. Again they roused him, and sent him away. What was a strange man doing around the house at 1:30 a. m?

It is getting so that Atchison people go to Chicago almost as much as they go to Kansas City, although the Missouri town is only a few hours' away. The train service between Atchison and Chicago on the Rock Island is so perfect and convenient that Atchison people visit Chicago upon the slightest excuse. There is no finer train in the Middle West than the splendid Rock Island train to Chicago. It has become famous. It leaves the Union depot every evening at 5:30 o'clock.

For the first half hour after the curtain went up on "Graustark" at the theatre last evening, the audience was disappointed. The play opened with a dialogue between a bellboy and the princess's maid that was plainly clipped from a 10-20-30 show, but relief came with the appearance of the two American young men on the scene, and the play grew in interest fast and furious. There is always material for enthusiasm in a story located in a foreign land, in which Americans are the heroes, and "Graustark" is built on just such plans. We Americans are so proud, and so conceited, that we can see nothing impossible or incongruous in an American going to Europe and marrying the reigning princess of any old land over there, and there wasn't a man in the audience last night who didn't think that he could have done it if he had only thought of it sooner. The hero in "Graustark," Grenfal Lowry (Bert. King) falls in love with a girl on a train in Colorado. All he can find out about her is that her name is "Guggenslocker," and she lives in Graustark. He determines to see more of her, and persuades a friend to go to Graustark with him, and there discovers that Miss "Guggenslocker" is the reigning princess of a monarchy about as big as a fly speck. He and his friend, single-handed, save her from a plot made by the ruler of an adjoining monarchy to kidnap her; they figure in fights, intrigues and duels, and always win. Of course, they win, for are they not AMERICANS! The princess falls in love with him, and changes the laws of Graustark so that she may marry him. But the honor was hers, for wasn't he an AMERICAN! Stephanie Longfellow, as the princess, was very charming and sweet; sometimes in a game the prize doesn't seem worth the effort to attain it, but the head prize that fell to Grenfal Lowry was really worth going to Graustark for. Lowry was clever, and his friend, Harry Anguish (Henry C. Myers) was particularly good, furnishing the only comedy in a play reeking with intrigue and romance. Prettier scenery has never been shown in Atchison than the first scene, showing Graustark in the distance. As the twilight deepened, lights twinkled out through the hundreds of windows in the homes in the valley, and, as they grew brighter, and the night grew darker, the plot thickened, the hair in the audience rose, and everyone was glad he had parted with the price of admission.

Jack Sweeney president of the new Independent league, and E. E. Shields of Kansas City, who will manage the Atchison league team, are in Atchison to-day, to talk with Supt. J. W. Waggener, of the street railway company. Sweeney will manage either the St. Joe or the Leavenworth team. Already he has signed ninety-two players, which will be distributed among the different towns. Shields has signed several players for the Atchison team. Among them is an Indian who is said to be a wonder. The league will be composed of St. Joe, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Kas., Kansas City, Mo., Sedalia, Nevada, and some other town. It is believed the attendance in the big towns will help to hold up the teams in the smaller towns. The teams will play on a 45-45 per cent basis. If Atchison plays in Kansas City, each team will get 45 per cent of the receipts. The other 10 per cent will go to defray the expenses of keeping up the grounds. Kansas City is baseball crazy. Some of the inter-city teams that played in Kansas City all last summer made big money. Tebeau, who runs the league team, is very unpopular. Nevertheless, the fans can't keep away from his games. He cleared $45,000 in Kansas City last year. It is probable that the Independent league will do big business in Kansas City.

There really is some excuse for the candidates for the office of city marshal being alarmed because that office, with the office of city court, are to be abolished. Many counties in the west part of the state, where the office of probate judge is poor picking, are working to have the city court combined with the office of probate court in counties of less than 40,000 population, and giving the judge original jurisdiction in cases in which amounts up to $1,000 are involved. Unless the minimum population, which counties must have before the combination is made, is reduced to 25,000, the city court of Atchison will be abolished if the bill becomes a law.

The Alex. Blair-J. E. Cummings sale attracted a big crowd to Denton on Wednesday. Sixteen horses and twelve mules sold readily, at good prices, but there was no bidding for the Hereford cattle. There was just one bid, and that was accepted: $50 for a cow. The auctioneer worked as hard as he could, but nobody wanted cattle. The auctioneer, by-the-way, received $27.50 for selling one cow for $50. It had been arranged to pay him $25 and his expenses, and although he sold but one cow, he received his money, and $2.50 for expenses.

John Funk will have a public sale on the 15th of February, eight miles and a half south of Atchison on the Leavenworth road, of thirteen head of horses, fifty-nine head of cattle and farm implements.

O. A. Simmons says The Globe was slightly in error in regard to the stock he holds in the Farmers and Merchants bank at Effingham. He has thirty-one of the 120 shares and they cost him $140 per share.

A farmer to-day told a reporter that his wheat was killed out by the recent cold weather, assisted by the recent high winds. On his way back to the office, the reporter asked a dozen farmers if they could remember a complete failure of wheat in this section, and they said they could not.

Word was received in Atchison yesterday of the death of Vincent, the little son of E. J. Costello, at Tacoma, Washington. His illness, which was scarlet fever, was of only three days' duration. Mr. and Mrs. Costello have a number of friends in Atchison who will sympathize with them in their bereavement.

The Atchison County Fair Association will be chartered in a few days, with J. M. Challiss, H. P. Armstrong, Charley Taliaferro, W. H. Grener, Wm. Carlisle, G. W. Soaries, B. P. Waggener and A. B. Harvey as directors for the first year. The capital stock will be $50,000. Shares will be sold at $10 each, on the installment plan. A county fair will be held in Atchison this fall.

Mr. Hartman, of Chicago, a Rock Island official, was in Atchison yesterday making arrangements to put a motor car on the Rushville run. The car is 70 feet long and is passenger and baggage car combined. It will take the same force to run it as is employed at present, but the car will not carry freight. L. T. Smith, the Rock Island conductor, thinks the trial will be made within 30 days.

Elsewhere we quote a farmer as saying that at a box social given at St. Patrick school house last night, the receipts amounted to $90. The farmer told the story in all seriousness. Later we met a boy who said the total receipts at the box social were ninety cents; that while twenty boys and thirty girls attended, only four girls brought boxes. The boy says the boys and girls just "sat around," and spent a little.

DEAFNESS CURED BY HYOMEI

(PRONOUNCED HIGH-O-ME)

If you are deaf and the deafness is due to catarrh, then read this honest, straightforward statement of one who had lost all hope.

Read This Letter.

I doctored and used various remedies, said to be good for catarrh.

The disease bothered me over a year, when I became deaf. Then I commenced to doctor, to get rid of the deafness. I became discouraged at the outlook, and well I might be, for there was nothing I used that helped me.

Mr. Earl Howe
ONCE DEAF, CAN NOW HEAR.

The trouble continued until I was advised to try Hyomei, and I procured a treatment. I used Hyomei thoroughly as per directions for a few weeks, and, much to my surprise, the deafness and catarrh left me entirely.

Since using this wonderful remedy, there has been no return of the trouble whatever, my hearing is good, and there is no catarrhal trouble whatever, and, for this reason, I know I have abundant cause for calling Hyomei a wonderful remedy and endorsing its use."—Earl Howe, 202 Cherry St., Allegan, Mich., Octoberber 9, 1908.

Hyomei has become known the world over, as an almost certain cure in any catarrhal condition of the nose and throat. It is easy and pleasant to use; you simply breathe in the healing, antiseptic air, made from the concentrated extract of the mighty eucalyptus trees of Australia, through a hard rubber inhaler, and, as this penetrating air passes over the diseased and germ-ridden membrane, it promptly kills the germs of catarrh, and allays the inflammation. All leading druggists will sell you a complete Hyomei outfit, including a bottle of Hyomei and a neat pocket inhaler, for only $1.00, and he guarantees it to cure catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, coughs and colds, or money back.

Sold and guaranteed by M. Noll.

Another base ball meeting will be held to-night in the parlors of The Byram. E. E. Shields, who will manage the Atchison league team, and President Sweeney, of the league, will be present. Mr. Shields has come to an agreement with the street railway company, and it is understood that the games will be played at Forest park. Mr. Sweeney says the street railway company has done the liberal thing by Mr. Shields. No subscription paper will be passed around to-night. Mr. Shields intends to start the team without asking the Atchison people for any subscriptions, and will not sell any season tickets to raise any money. He proposes to invest his own money. Mr. Shields would like to meet the Atchison men who are interested in base ball, and for that reason has called the meeting for to-night. He simply wants to become acquainted with the Atchison fans. All those interested in base ball are urged to attend because, when a man comes to Atchison and invests his own money to give the town league base ball, the fans at least ought to be enthusiastic.

"Dummy" Taylor, the old Corn Carnival colt, has "served his day." He has left the New York giants to work in a minor league, on account of his age. The dropping of Taylor is probably the hardest official order that McGraw, manager of the Giants, ever issued, for he and Taylor are very close friends. Taylor is reasonable, and knows that his zenith has been reached, and that he must go the downward path. Taylor has felt for two years that the manager of the Giants was doing more for him than his services warranted, and for that reason he refused several times to take a raise in salary. He is the only baseball player on record who ever refused an increase in salary.

The Kansas Prosperity edition of The Globe, forty-four pages, will be published next Tuesday, unless there is some accident. Forty-four pages of The Globe would make fifty-one pages of the Kansas City Star, as The Globe is an eight-column instead of seven-column paper. It will be the biggest paper ever published in Kansas. In several ways it will not be as handsome as the Anniversary edition, published fourteen years ago, but as an argument for Kansas Prosperity, and the advantages of living in Kansas, it ought to fill the bill. We believe this can also be said of it: no paper was ever published in the state which had as notable a number of contributors.

Sol Reed, colored, died this morning at 2:30, at his home at Eighth and L streets, from pneumonia. He lived with his brother, William Reed. He was 68 years of age. Sol Reed outlived five wives. His last wife, Martha Reed, was buried in 1905. Before he died he said that he had liked his wives all the same, and that they all had been good women. He came to Atchison in 1854. He was a cook in the old Massasoit House, and also at the old Otis house. The funeral will be held from the undertaking parlors of Sawin & Douglass to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Frank Quigg, formerly an umpire in the Southern league, but now a member of the Soldiers' home, at Leavenworth, is in town. Sometime ago, while acting as umpire in the Southern league, he met with an accident which incapacitated him; he was taking a bath, and as he stepped into the tub, slipped and fell, his head striking on the edge of the tub. He had been offered a position as umpire this season in the National league, as he was regarded as one of the best men in the business. Quigg was a soldier in the Spanish-American war.

The above is the name of a German chemical, which is one of the many valuable ingredients of Foley's Kidney Remedy. Hexamethylenetetramine is recognized by medical text books and authorities as a uric acid solvent and antiseptic for the urine. CONFIDENCE

We Back Up Our Statements With Our Personal Reputation and Money.

We are so positive that we can cure constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine free of all cost if we fail.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels, and make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous and often fatal.

Constipation is caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine, or descending colon. To expect a cure, you must, therefore, tone up and strengthen those organs, and restore them to healthier activity.

The discovery of the active principle of our remedy evolved the labor of the world's greatest research chemists. It possesses all the best qualities of the remedial active principle of the best known intestinal tonics, and it is particularly prompt in its results.

Leon De Dual has filed suit in the district court to set aside the deed to 160 acres of land, near Horton, and property in block O, Old Atchison. The defendants are his wife, Elenore DeDual and his children, Leon B., and Marie J. A. DeDual. The contention of the plaintiff is that, in 1893, when he was in feeble health, he was unduly influenced to transfer all his property to his wife; that, in return, he was to be given a home, and was to do no more work during his lifetime; that the defendants made life unbearable for him at home and forced him to live with other relatives. He asks the court to return him his property.

Zero weather will prevail at Omaha before morning. This afternoon the weather is turning cold on the west end of the Central Branch, and the clouds are trying to send down goose feathers. It is snowing on the Prosser branch this afternoon.

THE VALUE OF TEARS.

A Good Hearty Cry Often Leaves the Person Refreshed.

Tears are a valuable and incidentally a much-abused means of relieving nervous tension. For relief their importance cannot be overestimated, but when they are allowed to flow to the extent of creating weakness they become a source of danger justifying heroic measures to stop. A little crying at times is excellent and has often saved the mind of more than one woman, but the crying habit is almost as deeply to be deplored as that of taking a drug.

In effect the results of the two are not very different. Excessive weeping weakens the mind and nerves as well as the character. It also taxes the physical strength, and a woman who allows herself to indulge in a burst of tears every time there is the slightest cause shows no more strength of mind and character than might be expected of a child.

One of the times when tears are justified is when a woman has been through a severe nervous strain of some kind and is wrought up to a point of exhaustion. But this point has by no means been reached simply because she is annoyed, for example, or has been disappointed. A child cries when refused candy. If a woman also sheds tears because she cannot have a new gown or go to the theater there is little to choose between the two individuals except that she is old enough to know better. No wise person permits the child to continue crying, and certainly the woman should not permit herself such outbursts.

Yet if she is experiencing great grief, whether it comes suddenly or after weeks, such as death through illness, tears for a time will help. But should she allow them to continue they will take from her strength just as surely as would the constant use of a drug.

This fact a woman who does not wish to belittle her mind and character should remember. Whining tears being squeezed out on the slightest provocation are unjustified. A good hearty cry that leaves the person refreshed and stronger none need object to.

Prevention of Suicide on Railways.

The newly organized railway bureau of Japan has invented a new method of preventing suicide on the railway track as one of the first steps in the improvement of railway administration. The plan is to erect strong arc light poles at the places along the railway where cases of suicide are frequent, such as from the Uyeno park hill, overlooking the Tokaido line. Suicides from this spot have been most frequent, and it is hoped that by means of a new light the engineer in charge of the locomotive will be able to see any object on the track more easily.

LARGEST AUTO TRACK

COURSE FIVE MILES LONG.

Spectators Will Have a Clear View at Any Time of the Cars Racing at Their Highest Speed—Whole Track to Be Brilliantly Lighted.

Indianapolis is soon to have the largest and most remarkable motor racing track in the world. Instead of being circular or elliptical, it will double on itself, and as a result the racers will be in full view of the grand stand almost constantly.

Engineers are now at work staking off the course and arranging for the clearing of the ground. Active work of building the speedway will be begun as soon as the weather will permit, and not later than Feb. 15. The track and the entire grounds are under contract to be completed by May 15, so that the first public event may take place early in June.

The speedway will be built on a tract of land known as the John Pressley farm, just northwest of Haughville and adjoining the county asylum grounds. The tract is a mile long and half a mile wide.

The entire cost of the speedway, with the grand stands and other buildings, will be nearly half a million dollars. The speedway will consist of an outside track two miles in circumference, fifty and sixty feet in width, with suitably banked turns that will allow a speed of more than 100 miles an hour. From this outside track runs an inside snakelike track three miles long, which will enable the promoters to give every style of combination track and road racing in clear view of the grand stands.

The general detail of the equipment will be far more complete than ever before attempted on speedways. The easy access to the city will enable the promoters to accommodate great crowds of people.

The main grand stand will have a seating capacity of 35,000, and besides there will be twenty additional grand stands, each with a seating capacity of fifty, placed at different points about the speedway. The small grand stands will make it convenient for clubs to attend the meets in a body and have their own seating reservations.

All the grand stands will be at an elevation that will enable those inside to see all parts of the five mile course at any time. The track will have the unique distinction of being the only speedway or racing course in the world where the spectators can see the cars at their highest speed at any time during their flights about the track. Arrangements will be made to park 1,500 private automobiles.

The promoters say that the general plan of the track will insure the safest high speed racing. The plat of ground is level, and there will be no fences or buildings to obstruct the view of the spectators. The parking spaces and grand stands will be subdivided from the main grounds by wire fences, making it impossible for spectators to get on the track at any point.

The entire course will be brilliantly lighted in order that twenty-four hour record trials may be given. The plans provide for 420 independent electric arc lights furnished with reflectors stationed about the track and arranged in such a manner that the light will be thrown away from the eyes of the drivers.

J. P. MORGAN'S PARTING JEST.

Not to Corner Pyramids, For They Haven't Any Corners, He Said.

Before sailing for Europe the other day for a long stay abroad J. Pierpont Morgan, the financier, laughingly confided to the reporters who met him on the pier that he did not intend to form a corner in pyramids, at least not at this time, but that he might be tempted to purchase a few art treasures before his return.

Mr. Morgan, who was in great good humor, said:

"I will probably remain on the other side for many weeks. I am going abroad for the sake of a rest and for enjoyment. My immediate plans are not very definite. I may even get as far as Egypt. Yes, I am going to look around, and if I see anything I want to add to my collection of art objects—well, I might be tempted to buy. However, I am not going abroad to make purchases."

A cheerful person was moved to ask him if he intended to corner the pyramids.

"Pyramids haven't any corners," was his reply. Then as an afterthought he added, with a smile, "Besides, I never corner anything." He declined to discuss the financial or business situation.

Cheap newspapers have done more than any one thing in giving popularity and utility to the copper cent. When the men learned that they refused to embark. Led by a sub-Rural Guard to the permanent army, in accordance with a decree issued some weeks ago by Governor Magoon, they refused to embark. Led by a subaltern officer, they rushed to the palace. They entered the courtyard, and demanded an immediate audience of President Gomez. Some attempted to ascend the stairway to the presidential apartments, but the way was barred by the police. The mutineers, who were unarmed, retreated, but they remained in the courtyard, shouting that they refused to submit to the transfer. Several generals addressed the mutineers and restored order. The men were then sent to Cabanas under an armed escort.

Sample of "the news" sent out by special telegrams from New York. "Lady Constance Richardson, sister of the Countess of Cromartie, and celebrated as a swimmer, hunter and horsewoman, has performed classical dances in her bare feet in drawing rooms in this city so successfully that she has decided to become a professional dancer. She said to-night that she has made this decision because of her success at a dinner given by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Jr. a few nights ago, and at Mrs. James A. Burden's dinner party several weeks ago. The money which Lady Constance will receive for her dances will go, she said, to help found a school for boys in Scotland. 'I want to take five nice boys,' she said, 'to a school which I intend to establish in Scotland. I shall teach agriculture, dancing and athletics, as well as the lessons they would learn in an ordinary school.' Lady Constance said that swimming, a form of exercise of which she is especially fond, will be part of the curriculum of her institution of learning. She will not have to hire a swimming master. She holds the ladies' challenge shield, won in a public swimming competition in London. It was at Palm Beach that Lady Constance appeared in a swimming costume that was remarkable for its brevity, but which she defended on the ground that it was easy to swim in it. 'My dances,' she said to-night, 'are something like those performed by Isadora Duncan. They are classical dances performed in flowing robes and bare feet.' The bare feet of Lady Constance created a sensation at a ball given in the Gezireh Palace at Carlo in March, 1903. On that occasion Lady Constance, who was then Lady Constance MacKenzie, appeared as an Egyptian syce. As the Egyptian sun is hot, the syce wears no heavy clothing. Neither does she wear a great deal of light clothing. When Lady Constance appeared at the ball in Carlo she wore a syce's costume, which included neither shoes nor stockings."

AWFUL RASH ALL OVER BOY'S BODY

Weeping Eczema Kept Spreading on Little Sufferer—A Score of Treatments Prove Dismal Failures—Grateful Father Tells of

CURE ACHIEVED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"It gives me great pleasure to express my deep gratitude in appreciation of the incalculable benefit that the Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent did my little boy. He had an awful rash all over his body and the doctor said it was eczema. It was terrible and used to water awfully. Any place the water went it would form another sore and it would become crusted. A score or more physicians failed utterly and dismally in their efforts to remove the trouble. Then I was told to use the Cuticura Remedies. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and before we had used half the Resolvent I could see a change in him. In about two months he was entirely well. When people see him now they ask, 'What did you get to cure your baby?' and all we can say is, 'It was the Cuticura Remedies.' So in us Cuticura will always have firm and warm friends. George F. Lambert, 139 West Centre St., Mahanoy City, Pa., September 26 and November 4, 1907."

CONGRESS ON ITS LAST LAPS.

Not Much Done So Far This Session.

IMPORTANT THINGS PUT OVER

All Are Waiting For the Beginning of the Next Administration—Things Will Hum Then—Places For Handsome Men at the Inaugural Ball Are Handed Out.

Washington, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—The Sixtieth congress is on its last laps and will soon be numbered with things of the past. History will not record that it was a conspicuous congress, for outside of the appropriation bills matters of great importance did not occupy much of the serious attention of the national lawmakers. This was due in a measure to the fact that a presidential election occurred during the life of this congress, and the managers for the dominant party felt that it was necessary to be extremely careful. Many pressing measures that nearly all admit will have to be disposed of sooner or later have been sent over to the next congress. This short session comes also in the transition period—one administration is soon to succeed another—and, even though the same party is in power, the idea has prevailed at the capitol that it would be best to wait until Judge Taft takes up the reins of government before real legislation should be attempted. Talks with the big men of affairs in Washington indicate that practically all realize that further delays are out of the question, and the next congress, starting with the extra session in March, will not, so far as indications go, be lacking in interest.

High Prices For Inauguration.

As an illustration of how people who own property here are going to turn a penny on the day of President Taft's inauguration it is stated that Senator Depew of New York has planked down $300 in cash for a single room in a building on Pennsylvania avenue, along which the procession will pass. Rates at the best hotels have soared high, and in order to get as much as possible the men who are running them require people engaging quarters to agree to keep them not less than three days. In most of the hotels it is impossible to secure a room for a single day. But the people bent on witnessing the inauguration are reported to be engaging all the rooms available.

Places For Handsome Men.

From all accounts there will be a lot of Beau Brummels at the inauguration ball next month. The committee having charge of that function requested the senators to name one exceptionally handsome and imposing man from each state. The senators will also have the naming of one aid to the grand marshal of the parade. It was mentioned in brackets that these aids and Beau Brummels were expected, of course, to be white men. Senator Knox was the first one to turn in the selection from his state. In several instances the senators have had difficulty in making a choice. They have not agreed as to the best looking man.

Owen Advocates an Inheritance Tax.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma says that it may be considered socialistic to advocate the inheritance tax, and indeed most men who do are charged with being Socialists, but nevertheless he thinks that such a law should be passed. Great Britain, the laws of which are quoted in this country as models, has a limited inheritance tax, and it is reported as working well over there, so much so that its extension is urged. Senator Owen asserts that men with such "swollen fortunes as Rockefeller and Carnegie are giving back millions to the people," and for this they are to be commended as far as they have gone, for each has twenty times the money any family could use. The senator figures that if eventually the government got back and distributed for the general welfare all but $10,000,000 of the $100,000,000 which many men in the United States are worth the immediate families left would be in no danger of starvation.

Recognition of Aliens' Faithful Service.

The senate has passed and the house probably will pass before the close of the session a bill providing that any alien of the age of twenty-one and upward who has faithfully served or may hereafter so serve five consecutive years in the United States navy or marine corps shall be admitted to become a citizen of the United States upon his petition without any previous declaration of his intention to become such and without proof of residence on shore, and the court admitting such alien shall, in addition to proof of good moral character, be satisfied by competent proof from naval sources of such service.

Movement Toward Good Roads.

A number of bills are pending in the senate and house for the establishment in the department of agriculture of a bureau of public highways and to provide for national aid in the improvement of public roads. It is proposed to have three commissioners of highways, with a salary of $5,000 for each, two to be appointed by the president from the leading political parties and the third to be designated from the army engineers.

HEADACHES AND DIZZINESS

This Rockford Woman Was Discouraged but the Tonic Treatment Cured Her.

The first thing to do in nervous debility is to stop the cause of the trouble, if possible, whether it is irregular living, worry, or whatever it may be. Then the nerves must be given special nourishment and the blood must be kept pure and rich. This is the mission of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and this is why the pills have been used with such great success in nervous troubles that did not yield to ordinary methods of treatment.

Mrs. Frances D. Holmes, of No. 31 South Horsman street, Rockford, Ill., who was cured by this remedy, says:

"I was a great sufferer for over two years with nervous spells and sick headaches. I never felt well after the birth of our little girl. I was all run dow and there were times when I could n see or stand up, because of the dizziness. My head ached continually, I could not sleep, was nervous, irritable and gradually grew worse and more and more discouraged. I thought I would never ge any better.

"I was treated by our doctor for ov a year but finally gave up his medicine and began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I had taken them for a while I began to feel better and seemed to be getting stronger. The dizzy spells and headaches were less frequent and my nerves became steady. I took several boxes and was entirely cured. I cannot tell how thankful I am for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me and will praise them to everyone suffering as I did."

The pills contain no morphine, opiate, narcotic nor anything to cause a dru habit. They do not act on the bowels but make new blood and strengthen the nerves. If you want good health you must have good blood.

Thin blood means starved nerves, weakened digestion, functional disorders, headaches, possibly neuralgia, sciatica and even partial paralysis. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood, repair waste and prevent and check disease. They are for men and women, young and old. They are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

FOR THE GAS STOVE.

New Cooking Utensils That Are a Joy to Use.

Judging from the number of cooking utensils to be used over gas, it appears as if the kitchen stove would soon become a thing of the past.

Among the latest inventions for gas stoves is the waffle iron. It fits into a frame underneath which the gas is turned on.

A good sized iron that is divided into four quarters, making three corner shaped cakes, is $1.10. There are French waffle irons that more small cakes that cost $1.75, $2.50 and $3. Each size comes with a frame to fit.

Then there is a new steamer that will cook an entire dinner over one burner. There are four vessels, each setting into each other, made from tin with an excellent copper bottom.

The water is placed in the first one and put on over the gas stove. When the water boils the food to be cooked can be put in. The odor from one pot cannot escape to the other, and a dinner consisting of a chicken, potatoes, beans and apple dumpling (boiled) can be cooked at one time over the same burner with the latter turned off halfway.

In using this boiler the chicken is placed in the pan next the water, then the potatoes in the third, setting on a wire rack, which comes (15 cents extra) for keeping them dry and mealy, and lastly the apple dumplings.

It is not necessary that all the pots shall be used—two, three or four, as meets one's needs. But it is extremely necessary that the little cap shall be placed on the tube of the last pot; otherwise the cooking will be a failure as the steam will escape.

This vessel comes in four different sizes and costs from $1.75 to $3.50, according to size.

By its use food cannot burn, of course, and as a fuel saver it has no equal. Nickel frying pans, especially good for use over gas, are delightfully clean looking and exceedingly stro as the nickel is over iron. A medi sized pan in this style may be bou for 65 cents. Large sizes sell for m

When it comes to the question buying a roasting pan it is quite problem, for there are so many g ones. The seamless are supposed be best, and there are a number these which include also the self ba ing feature. One style in iron wh has an extra tray or rack inside ventilated cover is only $1 and is of reliable quality. Then there is anot er style similar to the first in mer but has glazed iron, which mak washing and scouring easier. Th are $1.25 to $1.50.

Then there are agate self basti pans and enameled pans that do t same service, and really all are exc lent in their way.

Though a number of new gridd cake pans have been introduced, th is nothing, I am told, to beat the soa stone models. The aluminium ones practical, but are expensive, and, wh iron is satisfactory, it is apt to ma the house smell of cooking and is n as clean looking as some of the ot ers, so that, all in all, the soapsto is conceded to be the best kind.

News from Want-Adville

The above classified advertisement appeared in The Globe a short time ago. It cost twenty-five cents, and was to be inserted three times.

The same evening that the advertisement appeared, Mr Graves telephoned to The Globe not to run it again, because he had several applicants for the desk before he closed his office that night, and had sold it to the first man who called.

That was a rather quick and profitable sale was it not? But, still, that happens very often.

If you have anything to sell or exchange, lost anything, or want to buy or rent anything, a little classified advertisement in The Globe will nearly always do the work.

The cost is only three lines, three times for 25 cents.

The W. C. T. U. should not grow over-confident because of the glad hand it received when its members visited the Missouri legislature to "plug" for state-wide prohibition. The fox, you remember, was glad to see the hen when she came to dine.

King Edward may imagine he is mighty big and important because the fact is heralded all over the world when he has a sore throat, or a game knee but he isn't so many. Paderewski got the same measure of fame for a split finger nail, and $5,000 insurance besides.

There are all sorts of publications. A new one is entitled "The Anti-Mail Order Journal." Its mission is to fight mail order houses, and get patronage from the "home dealers." One thousand agents are wanted at once, to solicit subscriptions from the home merchants.

The world has many worries and great problems, but it stops long enough to occasionally settle a question asked from funny New York. It has just been decided, for instance, that the blithe occupation of digging graves is not to be regarded as a building trade. It had never occurred to any one outside of New York that digging graves could be regarded as a building trade.

The new Kansas Magazine has an "art department." The Kansas City Star says. "For some reason, which strikes the readers of that unique and interesting publication as entirely unwarranted and inexcusable, the publishers of the Kansas Magazine insist upon 'illustrating' the otherwise very readable articles by Kansas writers with pictures that are, without doubt, most fearfully and wonderfully made.'" And the Hutchinson News also highly commends the Kansas Magazine. It says it needs only an editor, a proof reader and an illustrator to be a fine publication.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth is now a member of the stone masons' union, although of course she has no intention of working at the trade. But, although Alice is a noted advertiser, she isn't different in this particular from her father, or Mr. Taft, or Mr. Bryan, or many others of the great or near great who became members of labor unions merely to please themselves or the unions; in fact, for advertising purposes. Organized labor has many worthy aims, but it is hard to see just what one is in view by admitting politicians and their children for show purposes.

Lawrence Gazette: Remember how we almost laughed ourselves to death a few years ago over the fool theory advanced by Jerry Simpson, Senator Peffer, Mrs. Lease, and the other cranks about the "initiative and referendum?" It was simply side-splitting. Now we are getting the "initiative and referendum" into every bill that comes up in the legislature. And this is only one of the fool theories of the pops that we have adopted. Which seems to prove that the Populists were about twenty years ahead of their time, or that the reformers of Kansas to-day are twenty years behind.

So many bigamists are being arrested here lately that the men are in danger of becoming conceited, and full of the opinion that woman falls an easy prey to his wiles. But such men as she left are urged to think humbly, and with gratitude for their escape, of one Belle Gunness, widow, who not only married men and robbed them at will, but planted them in the hog lot, where they wouldn't make a fuss about it. If the men had been less conceited, Belle's business wouldn't have prospered as it did. As bad as she was, she was a needed object lesson to the men, and no man has broken her unenviable record and escaped.

THE SPIN TRIES TO LEARN A TRADE.

Behold, the lady barber! I always knew I might come to most anything, but never did I think I should barber, but that is what I have been doing for an hour or more. My brother has continued an invalid for some days, and, in the meantime, his beard has been growing. Everyone knows how handsome a man is with a week's beard, and, finally, Jim got so ugly I could not stand his face around any longer, and insisted upon making him beautiful. Jim was anything but enthusiastic when I proposed a shave, but was finally coaxed into it. I do not think he ever would have allowed me alone to do it, but I had an assistant. A formerly of Atchison girl, Jeannette Styles, is in a hospital here, training to be a nurse, and she has been here all morning in her uniform, taking Jim's temperature. To be sure, he has no temperature now, and is almost well again, but she and Jim are having a lovely time playing invalid and nurse. Several of Jim's friends are coming to see him this afternoon, and Jim thinks it will look well to have a nurse in uniform sitting around. Finally, I insisted upon the shave, and it was accomplished with much effort. Jim was not grateful in the least, and insisted upon kissing us all goodbye before we began. Also did he fuss at us during the entire operation, and almost swore at me because he said I pulled. But what did he expect? It was quite my first effort, but I know if I had done it too well, Jim would have stopped shaving himself, and put me to work every other day, or oftener. I have heard the theory advanced many times that every girl should learn to do some sort of work that would support her, if the occasion should arise, and I suppose I might as well learn to barber as anything else. So I think I had better practice on Jim awhile, and, when I become perfect, I can cut him a few times so he will get tired of my work. That really is quite an idea.

Sometime this year there is going to be an exposition in Seattle, and I hereby announce publicly that I shall NOT attend. I have announced it to my friends and family a dozen times, and they all look shocked and horror-struck. But I am sick, and tired, and weary of expositions, and I never intend to visit another, even if one should be built next door to me. And I cannot see why I should be looked upon as a freak because of my dislike for fairs. Most people seem to look on an exposition as a sort of sacred duty, but I think they are the biggest bores ever invented. I had my first introduction to them at Chicago, when I was almost an infant. Then I spent a month during each of the two summers of the Omaha exposition, and afterwards went to Buffalo to that turnout. Then I spent a month at St. Louis, at the big show there, and afterwards lived through four months of the Portland exposition. So I rather think I have seen all there is to be seen in the "White City," "Dream City," "Fairy City," line, and I hope I may never be forced to endure another. Probably a great many Atchison people will come out to Seattle, and then on to Portland, and I shall see them, and in order that they will not all say, "What! Haven't You been to the fair? And so near, too!" I shall explain that I am not going, and my reasons. One reason is that I loathe fairs, as I have said above. Another is that one is simply a repetition of the other on a larger or smaller scale. The third reason is that I have seen so many I can sit at home on my cool front porch and imagine everything they will have in Seattle. There will be the same old stucco palaces, outlined with electric lights, which come on slowly at night; the same lagoons and court of honor, with the same old fountain playing under electric lights; the same old gondolas that never saw Venice; the same old exhibits that have done duty ever since the Centennial in Philadelphia before I was born; the same old Philippine, or Alaskan, or Esquimaux village, with its smelly smells, and the "First native child ever born in the United States," and named Columbia, the same old bad cafes with their same outrageous charges, and last, but not least, the same old midway, with a new name, with the same old bum sideshows and "spielers." Nobody knows just how much I hate a midway. I was tired enough of them before the Portland fair, but, since then, my dislike has been more than passive. In the first place, the Portland midway—called the Trail—was about as bad as it could well be. I had seen every exhibit there a dozen times, to begin with, and before the fair was over I had seen each one a million times. Everybody who came to Portland that summer that knew me, wanted to see the fair, of course, and I was the unfortunate member of my family appointed to show the visitors around. I can say quite humbly that I earned my crown in Heaven that summer, if being a martyr does it. I know I suffered enough. The Trail was the final straw, and, after I had lived through about two months of it, I almost screamed at the sight of the Trail. So I am quite through with fairs and expositions, and I am NOT going to Seattle. And no one need ask me the reason why. I have nothing against Seattle, and would like to go up there again, but even if I am asked, I shall take no chances. I know I should be dragged out to the show against my wishes, and, in spite of my screams, and I run no more risks.

A few days ago I went to a tea where there was but one man present, and he was a minister. But he was young and good looking, and not clerical in the least, and had beautiful black, wavy hair, and had been to Harvard, and abroad, and smoked—and, for all I knew, chewed tobacco as well—so one could forget he was a minister, and enjoy himself. He also gets the large sum of $50 a month, but as this is not to be a sermon about a clergyman, I had better stop all these particulars. But, naturally, being the only man, and a minister as well, he was THE center of attraction. And, being frank, I will admit he was as much the centre of attraction to me as to the rest of the women. Some way or other, I inveigled him into a corner, and we were—anyway, I was,—having a perfectly good time talking about Paris when up bobbed another spin, who immediately plumped herself down on the sofa to stay. Hearing us saying something about pictures, she asked if we had ever seen the Metropolitan Art gallery in New York. I said yes, very hastily, and tried to get back to Paris, but no use. Says the other spin, "I have sat at the Metropolitan in front of Rosa Bonheur's "Horse Fair" for seventeen hours, just drinking in the beauties of that picture." And then she went on about how many days she could sit by the sea "drinking in the beauties" of nature till I handed her the minister, and left. I HOPE she enjoyed him. But will somebody tell me why any sane person would imagine they could impress anyone—minister or otherwise—with the notion that they were just the smartest ever because they sat seventeen hours in front of one picture? Of course the spin never sat seventeen hours or seven hours in front of any picture, but, if I were she, I would not tell it even if I had. Does it really show any appreciation of the beautiful to sit entranced for seventeen hours per sit, gazing at a pictured group of horses? Would anyone sit seventeen hours gazing at a group of real horses? Aren't real live horses more beautiful than pictured ones? Sometimes the way people rave over art gives me several severe aches. I like pictures myself pretty well, but, for the life of me, I cannot see that a picture of a thing is more beautiful than the thing itself. But I have seen people rave and rave about a picture of a tree who would pass the same tree by if it were growing, and never even notice it.

Seldom do I read a dreary book if I know what I am starting. It is one of my notions that there is sorrow enough in every life without hunting for it in books. When I was a little girl I used to read Hall Caine a great deal, and would become so impressed with some of the sorrows of his heroines that I could not sleep without harrowing dreams, for weeks at a time. But those books may have done me good in one way. Never since reading them have I had anything but pity for the women who sin the great sin, and find no mercy and no forgiveness. Hall Caine brought their misery and their sufferings home to me more than any author has ever done. I have always thrown myself, in a way, into the self of a heroine who impressed me particularly, and I believe I suffered in spirit every slight and neglect and torture the unhappy women of Manx Land suffered themselves. Then I learned that an unfortunate woman is not always a bad woman, and I have never judged harshly since. So, perhaps, it is well to read some of the dreary books if they make one think. But a dreary book that is only a dreary book, is not worth while. In Dickens, nearly every book ended happily, and the good were rewarded, and the wicked punished. That may not be true to life, but that is the way I like it to be. No matter how dreary many of Dickens' books were, he always had a few wholesome people to liven things up, and to make one laugh. I can laugh at Micawber, and Sam Weller, and Mrs Gamp, and the irrepressible Mrs. Nickleby, no matter how many times I read about them. When I am unhappy, I fly to Dickens, and immediately plunge in head foremost, and soon forget my troubles. I consider a humorist a public benefactor, anyway. And why is he not? There is so much sorrow in the world, why is not one that can make thousands laugh, and forget their troubles even for an hour, a public benefactor? Doesn't a good laugh make anyone feel better? We have only a limited number of hours to live, anyway, and if even one of them can be turned from a heartache into amusement, isn't that a good, and, perhaps, a blessed thing? I consider Dickens the greatest humorist that ever lived, and, therefore, one of the greatest public benefactors.

LINCOLN'S CENTENARY.

All over the country to-day the people are doing honor to the hundreth birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln. From one end of the country to the other, the name of Lincoln has been mentioned often, and always it has been to sing his praises. Not even the South longer questions his greatness. It is the blindness of hero worship, which sees no faults. It is the human way, but it is a way which has room for improvement. For Lincoln's name was not always so reverenced. True, the living Lincoln was honored; he was made president, or won the honor by the gifts of energy and oratory. But how the living Lincoln was abused, and how his faults and mistakes (for he was guilty of both) were flaunted and even exaggerated, is a matter of history.

The living Lincoln, in the fullness of his power as a man and chief executive, was very miserable. He felt the responsibility of the war game he played, which was load enough for one man to bear, but Lincoln did not escape with that. There were difficulties in his cabinet, he was the butt of jibes and jeers of the press at home and abroad. No wonder that every portrait of Lincoln is marked by the lines of sadness. But finally victory crowned the efforts of the armies of Lincoln, and shortly afterward came his death. After that there was nothing but praise for the man who had been subjected to everything else, and the praise has gone on growing for almost half a century until now it is universal.

And this is but a large example of the unfairness of humanity in passing judgment on the dead and the living. To the dead who do not care, we are almost better than they deserve; to the living who feel each thrust, we are too harsh. We lay a wreath on the bier, and turn to use a club of scandal or abuse upon the reputation of a living man. Of course the living man can fight back, which the dead cannot do; we would not have the dead defamed. But a wreath, or a word of encouragement, or praise, or gratitude, means more to the living than to those who have ceased to hear and see and care.

A ROOSEVELT VICTORY.

The apparent happy solution of the Japanese agitation on the Pacific coast, brought about by the defeat of the act to segregate Japanese school children, is another and important victory to crown the closing days of Roosevelt's administration. The outcome was so close, and, for a time, so uncertain, that it is only fair to give Roosevelt credit for the victory. Without his powerful influence, California would probably have hurled their insult at Japan, and looked to the country to assume the consequences. And Roosevelt is also entitled to the victory because he worked for it; no effort was spared, no scheme forgotten, which might have a bearing on the mind of California statesmen. He accepted the victory gracefully, agreeing to do all in his power for California, but the main point is that he won. That, to a great extent, is the key to Roosevelt's success. He wins because he works to win.

THE MONOTONY OF LIFE.

So often you hear men and women sighing for "something to break the monotony of life." But very likely it will not happen. Life is, for most of us, a succession of small affairs, of days of work, and other days of recreation. That constitutes monotony, if you think so, for monotony is very much a state of mind. Among New York's gay Four Hundred you could doubtless find some one who would like to have something to break the monotony of balls and theatres, yachting and polo. Somehow it seems there would be more chance for monotony entering a life of that kind than a more prosaic existence; there is so much more time to think of the awful monotony of it all, and it is all so useless and lacking in worthy aim. The soldier afield wearies of the monotony of marching, and fighting, of dead and dying, although he is making history, and may be a hero in the eyes of the world. Even the ever-changing sea may be monotonous to those who cruise it much. A bit of land to break the monotony is welcome. The monotony of pleasure drove Nero to fiddling and burning cities and Christians for diversion, although, in the vernacular and interpretation of the "rounder," there "was something doing every minute." It must have all become stale and insipid to Nero, and when he at last died miserably, he had little to show for his record but the misery of others. So it is not well that the ordinary man should bewail the monotony of his lot. We are not all cast in high places, and if it were your fate to do big things, or merely to pursue the phantom forms of pleasure, they too would grow monotonous; perhaps more so than this workaday life. Again we say monotony is a state of mind; a something akin to discontent; its progenitor, perhaps. To live life as you find it; to do your work well, that you may enjoy such recreation as comes; to share your joys with others, and if need be to share their sorrows; to do these things is to avoid monotony, and find this life we live worth while, even in humble station. We may not all shape our destinies, and we might bungle the job if we did, but every man has within him the power to shape the day's work; to make it good or bad; monotonous, or teeming with interest. And life is but a succession of days.

THE POLITE JAPANESE.

You have always heard how polite the Japanese are, and all this talk has not been without foundation, but it seems that this politeness isn't infallible. The Nichi Nichi is a newspaper published in Tokio, and it seems it isn't fond of Americans. The Nichi Nichi says: "These Americans are a race destitute of reason. The inhabitants of San Francisco profess not to fear the intervention of the federal authorities. The American government has certainly a riotous lot of blockheads to deal with in California. The anti-Japanese party on the Pacific coast act as if their friends, the Japanese, were afflicted with the plague." Of course, that is mild compared with some statements Americans in general have made about the Californians, and is a padded blow compared with the California opinion of the Japs, but it is a trifle hard on the Japanese reputation for politeness. The Nichi Nichi should take something to quiet its nerves.

CUBA AND LIBERTY.

The Cubans are more prompt than was expected. Already a mutiny has occurred among the rural guards, and the little step from mutiny to rebellion, or revolution, will likely be taken before time for another election. Self-government among the Latin race in the West is never the most stable, but it will be more difficult to accomplish in Cuba than elsewhere, for in Cuba there is a large element which does not desire self-government, the alternative of American rule offering more privileges and greater protection. And, while this element represents the most substantial citizens of the island, they are not above playing the game of politics and revolution to accomplish their end.

George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, has been away on a vacation, but is expected home next week. We are sure Mr. Lorimer has been away because the Post has persisted in printing a series of stories about a set of triplets, Druesella, Flavilla, and Prunella (or Vanilla, we can't remember which). We are convinced that Mr. Lorimer will return home next week, because at the conclusion of the story about Flavilla this week is a note saying: "This is the last of the series of stories about Druesell, Flavilla, etc, triplets." There has been a good deal of complaint from the admirers of the Saturday Evening Post about these stories, but if Mr. Lorimer, upon his return, will say he was away from home when they were printed, and he regrets the affair as much as anyone, the admirers of The Post will be willing to forgive and forget the Flavilla, Druesella, etc., incident, but if he acts as the editor of Collier's Weekly has done about "The Letters of a Japanese Schoolboy" the friends of the Post will hope that waking or sleeping, feasting or fasting he will see, dancing before his eyes forever, the idiotic Flavilla, Druesella, and Prunella triplets.

There is considerable talk about a stage censor for New York city, it being freely admitted, even by the better theatrical managers, that some of the shows in New York are too vile even for the metropolis. This condition is deplorable for the reason that it is more of an indictment of the people than of the stage. No suggestive or obscene performance could prosper unless it pleased the people, and there is strong evidence that they do prosper in New York. The stage is an effect rather than a cause; somewhere back of the demand for racy productions in New York is the fact that the people have become familiar with real vice, and like it.

GLOBE SIGHTS.

Even a fool is capable of seeing another man's folly.

You can find a garter on the floor of a dry goods store any hour of the day.

There is no story quite so interesting to the women as another woman's wrongs.

You may keep ahead of death and agents for awhile, but they will finally overtake you.

Here of late Daughter is allowed to read in the parlor a novel worse than Son used to peruse in the barn loft.

An Atchison thoroughbred says that where one girl will get mad when she is kissed, six will laugh and blush.

If you own a Jersey cow, and it has a heifer calf, that's a sign you are lucky. Most Jersey Calves are gents.

If a stove is allowed to smoke longer than two days, it is a sign that some one around the place is shiftless.

There is no woman quite so proud as the woman who has two or three flowers in bloom in her window in winter.

Another thing about Job: He was never called when very busy to the telephone, and told when he reached there to "Please wait a moment."

Talk to any man long enough, and he will tell you of a better position open to him, and the danger he is in of being "drafted" to make him take it.

Lysander John Appleton is a poor man, and blames it on the trusts. The truth is, John has spent too much time joking when he should have been working.

"He is a generous provider," a woman will admit grudgingly of her husband. "Well," her mother will say out of her life of fighting with want and poverty, "What else can a woman want?"

Fortunate is the man whose final sickness doesn't last longer than two weeks: At the end of that time neighborhood interest in him begins to wane unless he dies, when it becomes all-absorbing.

Don't imagine that you are not appreciated merely because you are criticised. People are really quite appreciative. The trouble is that there is so much in most of us that is subject to criticism, and we can't see it. Look yourself over, and see if you don't get about what is coming to you.

The American Society of Equity, a farmers' organization, has submitted a paper to Congress in which the claim is made, and figures produced to prove it, that it costs a farmer $1.19½ per bushel to raise wheat, and the price he should receive for it should not be less than $1.25 per bushel. And this organization will find some fool in congress who will introduce a bill regulating the price at which a farmer must sell his wheat. But why not? Isn't wheat an absolute necessity, even more essential to the support of life than railroads? Then why not regulate wheat just as railroads are being regulated? Atchison county farmers will produce figures to prove that they would be tickled to death to get a price of ninety cents per bushel, one year with another, for their wheat. Now this Society of Equity, which is plainly a society of Inequity, should be investigated and a law passed requiring its members to sell their wheat at eighty-five cents a bushel, or one-third less than they claim they can produce it for at a profit. The railroad companies claim they were not charging exorbitant rates when a 3-cent fare was charged but they were "regulated" and the fare cut to two cents per mile. Why not treat the wheat raiser as the railroads have been treated and lop off a part of the price they are receiving for wheat?

A bill has been introduced in the Missouri legislature which is practically a conscription act. It provides that any man in the state between 18 and 45 years of age shall be subject on call to service in the militia, or be compelled to pay $15 a month for the time he refuses to serve. It is hard to understand that such a bill has even been introduced. Its passage seems most unlikely. Only once in the history of the country has conscription been necessary, and that was at a time when one-half of the country was engaged in fighting the other half. With the added millions of the whole country to draw from, it is never likely to be necessary again. It is certain it will not be tolerated by any state in times of peace. American men are willing to fight when occasion demands, but most of them are too busy to devote their time to tin soldier performances. Nearly every state has willing boys enough to attend to such matters, and those which have not have no need of militia.

There is now talk of a law in Kansas prohibiting the sale of playing cards. There is a clamor for new laws in Kansas, yet there are hundreds of laws on the statute books to which no attention is paid. It is a rare man who does not violate a dozen laws a day. It is a violation of law to spit on the sidewalk. The women who play cards for prizes, are guilty of a felony. These are only two examples out of hundreds that might be named.

The newspapers to-day were filled with pictures of Abraham Lincoln At His Desk, Abraham Lincoln's Tomb, Abraham at a Sick Bed of a Young Soldier, Abraham and His Family, etc., etc., but the St. Joe Gazette alone had something new. A picture, entitled "One Hundred Years Ago," showed a log cabin in the moonlight. Outside "Doc's" horse is tied, and from a window floats these words, "We will call him Abraham."

Railroad employes do not demand a law requiring that their wages be paid every two weeks, instead of every month, as at present. Then why is the legislature threatening such a law? Is it simply to annoy and pester the railroads? And is there any sense in pestering the railroads unnecessarily?

Silvia Green, daughter of Hetty Green, the richest woman, is engaged, and to a real man, instead of a title. Hetty Green is abused a good deal for not spending her money in a lavish manner, but she is the smartest one of the bunch; too smart to buy a title.

Evangelist Biederwolf has Topeka going. He held seven meetings yesterday, and, at one of them, children marched four abreast in a column four blocks long. The Rev. As a realistic deathbed word-painter, to use his own expression, he "takes the cake."

Troy Chief: One of the sturdy pioneers of this vicinity is Jordan Marcell, who came from Scott county, Kentucky, with his parents with mule teams and settled where he now lives October 1, 1858 He married Margare Jeffers in 1866, and they are the only couple in the township living in the same place for forty-two years. Mr. Marcell has never done anything but farm in his life and he has made a success of it, as he now owns four hundred acres of fine land all paid for and he is worth probably fifty thousand dollars. The writer has known him for forty years and he is one of the most consistent, upright men we have ever met. Another remarkable thing about him, is, he is the only man we ever knew who had all good sons-in-law. They are John Thorp, John Lewis, Jesse Blevins and Sam Lewis.

The Highland Vidette calls attention to the passing away of the older families of Doniphan county and this is true of Atchison county. Ten years have wiped out a dozen names that were interwoven with the town's history for generations back. The death in White Cloud that leads the Vidette to make the comment, was that of Will Sloane last week: His wife died shortly before and the only child has married and gone. The Sloanes were a fine family. Mrs. Sloane was a helpless cripple, and her husband for years carried her in his arms to entertainments and to church. Though unable to talk or wait upon herself and with a face badly disfigured, the result of a fire, she was one of the happiest and best natured women in the town.

An Atchison family, composed entirely of women, had an experience last night, which proved to them the efficiency of the police force, and of the telephone service. A drunken man pounded on the door of their house, demanding admittance. Of course, the women were scared nearly to death. They telephoned for the police, and, although the house is sixteen blocks from the police station, within a very few moments two policemen arrived: They came in an automobile. The telephone girl of her own accord notified several of the neighbors, and, within an instant four of the neighbor men arrived with guns. The intruder proved to be a tipsy man who had lost his way, but the police and telephone service were all right.

In the parlors of The Byram last night a number of Atchison shopmen and trainmen presented a chest of silver to J. L. Butler, master mechanic of the Omaha and Central Branch di- soldier in the Spanish-American war. Ray, Mr. Butler's chief clerk, made the presentation speech, to which Mr. Butler responded. Several others made speeches of congratulation to Mr. Butler, whose marriage to Miss Helen Madden occurred in St. Louis several weeks ago. The silver set is one of the most expensive in Atchison. Mr. Butler is held in high esteem by all classes of railroad men.

C. R. Kluger, the Jeweler, 1060 Virginia Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes. "I was so weak from kidney trouble that I could hardly walk a hundred feet. Four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy cleared my complexion, cured my backache and the irregularities disappeared, and I can now attend to business every day, and I recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy to all sufferers, as it cured me after the doctors and other remedies had failed." M. Noll.

There is going the rounds of the press a couplet of doggerel which Lincoln when a boy, of 14, wrote in his copybook. "Abraham Lincoln, his hand and pen, He will be good, but God knows when." J. E. Remsburg, of this county, owned, for many years, the leaf containing this couplet. It was tattered and yellow with age. Mr. Remsburg also owned four other interesting Lincoln relics, which, together with the above, were presented to him by Lincoln's law partner, W. H. Herndon' 1. A leaf from Lincoln's exercise book, which was made of foolscap paper. Both sides of the leaf were covered with arithmetical problems, which he had solved and copied in the book 2. A lawyer's brief of several pages, written by Lincoln. Not one lawyer in 600 wrote as neat and legible a hand as Lincoln did 3. A skeleton of a speech made by Lincoln in the Illinois legislature, at Vandalia, the old state capital This was written with a pencil. 4. A book of reading exercises, out of which Lincoln, when a boy, learned his declamations, his first lessons in oratory. The flyleaf contains a certificate of genuineness from Mr. Herndon. These relics are now preserved in the famous Guther collection of Lincoln relics at Chicago.

Howard Schauer, who is now in Santa Barbara, Cal., has donated a window to St. Mark's new church building in Atchison, in memory of his father, the late Rev. Jacob Schauer, who was a Lutheran minister and a pillar of the St. Mark's church before his death, several years ago. A number of other people are donating pews and windows. Howard Schauer was in the printing business in Atchison several years ago.

RESULTS THAT REMAIN.

Are Appreciated by Atchison People.

Thousands who suffer from backache and kidney complaint have tried one remedy after another, finding only temporary benefit. This is discouraging, but there is one special kidney medicine that cures permanently, and there is plenty of proof right here in Atchison.

Here is the testimony of one who used Doan's Kidney Pills years ago, and now states that the cure was lasting.

Mrs. A. E. Wilson, 412 Q street, Atchison, Kas., says: "About three years ago I first noticed kidney complaint in my case. There was a constant, dull ache across the small of my back, and I was frequently distressed with headaches and dizzy spells. I finally realized that something must be done, as kidney trouble had been hereditary in our family. When my attention was called to Doan's Kidney Pills, I had my husband procure a box at M. Noll's drug store. They proved so satisfactory that I willingly endorse them"

On November 10, 1908, Mrs. Wilson confirmed the above statement given on May 17, 1905, in the following words: "I have never had a return of kidney trouble since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me, and I therefore feel that I cannot endorse this remedy too highly."

That terrible prohibitory law yesterday passed the senate with only one dissenting vote, and will probably pass the house, and become a law. In that event, it will be unlawful for anyone to sell liquor in Kansas for any purpose Not only drug stores, but clubs, will be compelled to quit.

O. M. Babcock has received a copy of the order of the railroad commissioners directing the Burlington to place a second train on the Rulo branch. The report says that the evidence, introduced at the hearing, held in White Cloud recently, showed that there was sufficient business to warrant the company putting on another train. Mr. Babcock was present at the hearing and says the evidence showed clearly that there was not sufficient business to warrant a second train being put on. The new train will go into effect March 15 and will leave Atchison in the morning and return in the evening. No change will be made in the schedule of the present train. It is generally admitted that the Rulo branch of the Burlington is as worthless a piece of railroad property as there is in the state. If this be true, then why does not the railroad company flatly refuse to put on this extra train, turn the road over to the state and let the state show how to handle a poor piece of railroad property at a profit.

Troy Chief Perhaps some of the old settlers will remember that there was a town laid out in this county by the name of Grandville, but few will remember just where it was located. A short time ago, Elbert Ladwig, in looking over the deeds to the Ladwig farm, made the discovery that the town of Grandville was located on the four corners at the Ladwig place. The three corners of the three quarter sections of the Ladwig place, and the corner of the Charley Campbell's place was the location of the town. No buildings were ever erected there, and the town never got any further than just being located. It should have been Grandview instead of Grandville, for a grander view of a grander country was never seen.

Kansas City Times Mrs. Agnes Boss Thomas will have to bring her 6-year-old son, Theodore C. jr., into court Saturday and establish her rights to him. Her husband, Theodore C. Thomas, who secured a divorce from her two years ago obtained a writ of habeas corpus yesterday afternoon. The divorce decree awarded him the custody of the child with the exception of one month each year, when Mrs. Thomas was to take care of him. In the court proceedings yesterday he alleged that she took Theodore, jr., from the school he was attending in Leavenworth last fall without the father's consent and that she has kept him ever since Mrs. Thomas lives at 119 East Thirty-fourth street.

Lawrence Gazette. Of course, Lawrence wants government by commission. Three or four men in town have unanimously agreed upon that point. Three of them want to be on the commission, and the fourth one wants a job under the new plan. But what the taxpayer wants to know is where the new commission could save the extra $4,200 to pay the three commissioners. If that question can be answered in a satisfactory manner, there are some others that are ready to be propounded.

Another cold wave is on its way to Atchison and vicinity, according to a bulletin received at 10 o'clock last night. Unless the threatened renewal of winter conditions is side tracked or switched off for some other destination its full force will be felt here within the next thirty-six hours—which means by to-morrow morning. The notice of the expected fall in temperature was contained in a telegram from the United States weather observer at Chicago. A drop of forty degrees is predicted. This will likely mean a temperature within a few degrees of the zero mark.

An evangelist tells a story of a visit to a small town in one of the Southern states, where he was awakened one morning by a soprano voice which came from the kitchen singing a famous hymn. As the bishop was dressing, he meditated on the piety of the servant. Speaking to her after breakfast of the pleasure it had given him, he was met by an unexpected answer. "Oh, thank you, sir," she replied; "but that's the hymn I boil the eggs by—three verses for soft and five verses for hard."

NEWS AND COMMENT.

Kansas City Star: In answer to Ed. Howe's inquiry, "What Comes to Your Mind When the Word 'Kansas' is Mentioned?" Arthur Brisbane offers a few suggestions, all of them most complimentary to the state, and none of them more so than this very truthful assertion "In Kansas the thinking individual counts, not the mob 'There is a chance there for any man with a thought of his own to get a hearing. There is an opportunity for a man with a new idea to have it tried." Mr. Brisbane has epitomized the entire matter in this short paragraph. Kansas is a state of ideas. Its people think. They do not believe in the old proverb: "Let well enough alone." They want good things made better. That's the reason there is always something doing in Kansas. On this account Kansas has never been able to get along well with its politicians. For the politician is much the same the world over—a "standpatter." Because the world has moved along in some manner in the same old track for a century or so the politicians want it to go on that way forever. But Kansas objects to the limitations of a single track. If it gets into a rut it pulls itself out, and the politicians call it a "revolution." The statesman who imagines that Kansas is not always for the thing that means progress, misrepresents the Kansas spirit. The one idea, always paramount, is for advancement in moral, political and material things. That is the Kansas idea. Mr. Brisbane has described Kansas in the Kansas language.

"I have searched American history in vain to find one great man who was the son of a fashionable, pampered mother." In a lecture before the New York City Mother's club yesterday afternoon, the subject of "The Mother of To-day," the Rev Madison C. Peters made the above statement, which was disputed by Mrs Lillie Devereaux Blake. She cited the example of President Roosevelt. "He was a man born of a most gentle mother, whose social duties were many, and whose life was what might be called fashionable in the best acceptance of the word," said Mrs. Blake.

Topeka Capital. The bill to raise "Farmer" Coburn's salary to $6,000 a year is out of committee. Its sponsors believe it will pass both houses of the legislature, and they ought to know—they've counted every nose. "Farmer" Coburn has recently had two offers to leave the Kansas department of agriculture. The publishers of the Orange Judd Farmer offered him $6,000 a year under "Farmer" him $6,000 a year and an interest in the business. A Kansas publisher not long ago shook $5,000 a year under "Farmer" Coburn's nose. It looks as though Kansas would have to "come through" if it hopes to retain Coburn's services. Of course, the "cheap screws" will howl. They always do. But it seems to be the sense of the great majority of the intelligent people of Kansas that "Farmer" Coburn has long been underpaid. While the legislature is about it the salary of J. C. Mohler, assistant secretary of the state board of agriculture should also be raised. Mohler knows more about the work of the Kansas state board of agriculture than any other living man except Coburn. He gets $1,600 a year, which is less than the salary received by any other state employe of his class. Mohler isn't asking for a raise, but he ought to have one.

LAY CORNER STONE OF MEMORIAL HALL

PRESIDENT MAKES ADDRESS

WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN ALIKE IN LOFTY IDEALS AND SOUND COMMON SENSE.

LINCOLN'S PROPHETIC VISION

Life and Works of the Great Statesman Set Forth in Eloquent Speech by the Chief Executive of the Nation — Other Distinguished Men Contribute Laurels to His Memory —Immense Concourse Unable to Be Present to Witness the Exercises.

Hodgenville, Ky.—In a tent holding about 4,000 people the exercises commemorating the centenary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln were conducted here.

President Roosevelt, Cardinal Gibbons, Bishop Galloway, ex-Gov. Folk of Missouri and other leading men made addresses.

From all points, by train and over roads not particularly smooth at this season of the year, the people gathered to the exercises. A building four times the size of the tent provided could not have accommodated the crowd.

President Roosevelt.

The corner stone of the Memorial hall was laid by President Roosevelt. In an impressive address the chief executive eulogized the life and work of the great statesman. He spoke as follows:

"We have met here to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of one of the two greatest Americans; of one of the two or three greatest men of the nineteenth century; of one of the greatest men in the world's history. This rail splitter, this boy who passed his ungainly youth in the dire poverty of the poorest of the frontier folk, whose rise was by weary and painful labor, lived to lead his people through the burning flames of a struggle from which the nation emerged, purified as by fire, born anew to a loftier life. After long years of iron effort, and of failure that came more often than victory, he at last rose to the leadership of the republic, at the moment when that leadership had become the stupendous world-task of the time. He grew to know greatness, but never ease. Success came to him, but never happiness, save that which springs from doing well a painful and a vital task. Power was his, but not pleasure. The furrows deepened on his brow, but his eyes were undimmed by either hate or fear. His gaunt shoulders were bowed, but his steel thews never faltered as he bore for a burden the destinies of his people. His great and tender heart shrank from giving pain; and the task allotted him was to pour out like water the life-blood of the young men, and to feel in his every fiber the sorrow of the women. Disaster saddened but never dismayed him. As the red years of war went by they found him ever doing his duty in the present, ever facing the future with fearless front, high of heart, and dauntless of soul. Unbroken by hatred, unshaken by scorn, he worked and suffered for the people. Triumph was his at the last; and barely had he tasted it before murder found him, and the kindly, patient, fearless eyes were closed forever.

Washington and Lincoln.

"As a people we are indeed beyond measure fortunate in the characters of the two greatest of our public men, Washington and Lincoln. Widely though they differed in externals, the Virginia landed gentleman and the Kentucky backwoodsman, they were alike in essentials, they were alike in the great qualities which rendered each able to render service to his nation and to all mankind such as no other man of his generation could or did render. Each had lofty ideals, but each in striving to attain these lofty ideals was guided by the soundest common sense. Each possessed inflexible courage in adversity, and a soul wholly unspoiled by prosperity. Each possessed all the gentler virtues commonly exhibited by good men who lack rugged strength of character. Each possessed also all the strong qualities commonly exhibited by those towering masters of mankind who have too often shown themselves devoid of so much as the understanding of the words by which we signify the qualities of duty, of mercy, of devotion to the right, of lofty disinterestedness in battling for the good of others. There have been other men as great and other men as good; but in all the history of mankind there are no other two great men as good as these, no other two good men as great. Widely though the problems of to-day differ from the problems set for solution to Washington when he founded this nation, to Lincoln when he saved it and freed the slave, yet the qualities they showed in meeting these problems are exactly the same as those we should show in doing our work to-day.

Lincoln's Deep Foresight.

"Lincoln saw into the future with the prophetic imagination usually vouchsafed only to the poet and the seer. He had in him all the lift toward greatness of the visionary, without any of the visionary's fanaticism or egotism, without any of the visionary's narrow jealousy of the practical man and inability to strive in practical fashion for the realization of an ideal. He had the practical man's hard common sense and willingness to adapt means to ends; but there was in him none of that morbid growth of mind and soul which blinds so many practical men to the higher things of life. No more practical man ever lived than this homely backwoods idealist; but he had nothing in common with those practical men whose consciences are warped until they fail to distinguish between good and evil, fail to understand that strength, ability, shrewdness, whether in the world of business or of politics, only serve to make their possessor a more noxious a more evil member of the community, if they are not guided and controlled by a fine and high moral sense.

Lessons from Lincoln's Life.

"We of this day must try to solve many social and industrial problems, requiring to an especial degree the combination of indomitable resolution with cool-headed sanity. We can profit by the way in which Lincoln used both these traits as he strove for reform. We can learn much of value from the very attacks which following that course brought upon his head, attacks alike by the extremists of revolution and by the extremists of reaction. He never wavered in devotion to his principles, in his love for the union, and in his abhorrence of slavery. Timid and lukewarm people were always denouncing him because he was extreme; but as a matter of fact he never went to extremes, he worked step by step; and because of this the extremists hated and denounced him with a fervor which now seems to us fantastic in its deification of the unreal and the impossible. At the very time when one side was holding him up as the apostle of social revolution because he was against slavery, the leading abolitionist denounced him as the "slave hound of Illinois." When he was the second time candidate for president, the majority of his opponents attacked him because of what they termed his extreme radicalism, while a minority threatened to bolt his nomination because he was not radical enough. He had continually to check those who wished to go forward too fast, at the very time that he overrode the opposition of those who wished not to go forward at all. The goal was never dim before his vision; but he picked his way cautiously, without either halt or hurry, as he strode toward it, through such a morass of difficulty that no man of less courage would have attempted it, while it would surely have overwhelmed any man of judgment less serene.

Man of Great Toleration.

"Yet perhaps the most wonderful thing of all, and, from the standpoint of the American of to-day and of the future, the most vitally important, was the extraordinary way in which Lincoln could fight valiantly against what he deemed wrong and yet preserve undiminished his love and respect for the brother from whom he differed. In the hour of a triumph that would have turned any weaker man's head, in the heat of a struggle which spurred many a good man to dreadful vindictiveness, he said truthfully that so long as he had been in his office he had never willingly planted a thorn in any man's bosom, and besought his supporters to study the incidents of the trial through which they were passing as philosophy from which to learn wisdom and not as wrongs to be avenged, ending with the solemn exhortation that, as the strife was over, all should reunite in a common effort to save their common country.

Strong Sense of Justice.

"He lived in days that were great and terrible, when brother fought against brother for what each sincerely deemed to be the right. In a contest so grim the strong men who alone can carry it through are rarely able to do justice to the deep convictions of those with whom they grapple in mortal strife. At such times men see through a glass darkly; to only the rarest and loftiest spirits is vouchsafed that clear vision which gradually comes to all, even to the lesser, as the struggle fades into distance, and wounds are forgotten, and peace creeps back to the hearts that were hurt. But Lincoln was given this supreme vision. He did not hate the man from whom he differed. Weakness was as foreign as wickedness to his strong, gentle nature; but his courage was of a quality so high that it needed no bolstering of dark passion. He saw clearly that the same high qualities, the same courage, and willingness for self-sacrifice, and devotion to the right as it was given them to see the right, belonged both to the men of the north and to the men of the south. As the years roll by, and as all of us, wherever we dwell, grow to feel an equal pride in the valor and self-devotion, alike of the men who wore the blue and the men who wore the grey, so this whole nation will grow to feel a peculiar sense of pride in the mightiest of the mighty men who mastered the mighty days; the lover of his country and of all mankind; the man whose blood was shed for the union of his people and for the freedom of a race, Abraham Lincoln."

SONS OF ITALY HONORED.

Monument Will Perpetuate Memory of Great Artists.

Italy is famous for the way in which she remembers her celebrated sons, so that it has always been a matter of surprise that Bologna had never commemorated the remarkable Carracci family, to whom she owes her fame as the seat of the famous Bologna school.

A monument, erected to the three celebrated artists, has removed this reproach to the city, rising in the portice of the Institute of Fine Arts, its most proper setting.

Ludovico, Annibale and Agostino Carracci were perhaps the most remarkable trio in art of the same family the world has ever seen, and all over Italy are to be found their works, so much were the prophets honored in their own country, but they are also seen at their best in Madrid and Paris. In their art lives the core of the Bolognese seicento, its spirit and atmosphere, all its peculiar ideas and its arid theoretical dissertations, all its light and shadow—the Carracci were true sons of their time and city.

Ludovico died at Bologna, Agostino at Parma, and Annibale in Rome. Lanzi says the first was to his school what Homer was to the Greeks, and he is the best known here in his native town. Annibale was perhaps the best artist, and he has the distinction of having a tomb in the Pantheon, opposite that of Raphael, both of which, by the way, have to be well scrubbed twice a year to remove the scrawls of enterprising tourists, who perhaps thus think to gain fame. It is related that Agostino painted a horse in such lifelike manner that a live horse went up to the picture and neighed. Over the tomb of Annibale will rise also in Rome a bust.

But with all their individual fame, which was great, the three are chiefly known to posterity as the wonderful founders of the Bolognese school.

Social Psychology.

One of the chief problems of the twentieth century will be the regulation of other combinations of men, whether based upon race or voluntary associations for industrial and other purposes; and that problem will involve politics, jurisprudence and social science. In one point, certainly, the example set in the case of political organizations must be followed. It is that of accepting the natural tendencies of a progressive age, instead of trying to run counter to them. . . . The true and therefore the permanent solution must be found in keeping in mind both the individual and the group, and politics and jurisprudence can be wisely directed by a thorough study of the psychology of the group.—A. Lawrence Lowell, President-Elect of Harvard University, in Address on Social Regulation.

Practice Rotation of Trees.

The necessity of the rotation of crops is well recognized among modern farmers, and now it appears that in India nature is seen practicing the same thing in the forests. The soil becoming exhausted after a long period of one kind of forest, seedlings of another species gradually replace the old trees as they die out. On the Indian soil, the deodar tree has been observed taking the place of the blue pine, pine and oak slowly exchange places and spruce and silver fir have been noted gradually extending into a forest of failing oaks.

Why Syrup Pepsin is Free

For more years probably than the age of the person reading this, Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., has practiced medicine, and the one thing that forced itself on his mind was the urgent need of the human body for something that would scientifically regulate the digestive organs—the stomach, liver and bowels.

These years of study developed Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, now recognized as the national safeguard of health in thousands of good American homes. For twenty years it has been gaining friends, for it is today, as it always has been, the best laxative tonic for women, children and old folks, for these especially need a gentle, safe laxative tonic that is sure in results and does not gripe.

It is because the doctor has watched its good work for all these years and believes in the merit of his remedy that he offers to send a free trial bottle at his own expense to anyone who writes him. You have simply to send your name and address. On the strength of what these free trial bottles have done—and thousands have been given away—Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is today more widely used than any other American remedy for constipation, liver trouble, flatulency, biliousness, indigestion, sour stomach, dyspepsia, heartburn and similar disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. It can be obtained of any druggist at 50 cents and $1 a bottle, and a bottle will do you a hundred times the amount of good it costs you.

People like Mrs M. L. Graves, 832 Oakwood ave., Toledo, O., G. B. Houston, Bossmer, Ala., William Redd, Goodman, Miss., once sent for a free test bottle and now have their entire family using it as needed.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

MISS GOULD'S BOUQUET.

A Novel Bunch of Flowers Designed by Mrs. Gould.

What promises to become one of the greatest fads in society is the new floral piece, "La Pompadour," such as was carried by Miss Marjorie Gould at her coming out dinner and dance at the Hotel Plaza. The creation, which consists of American Beauty roses, ferns and lilies of the valley, was made by Alex McConnell, society florist of New York city.

La Pompadour is a loose bunch of flowers arranged in pyramidal form, standing about two feet in height. It required much effort on the part of the young debutante to carry it.

Miss Gould's floral piece was the idea of her talented mother, Mrs. George Gould. She wished for something elegant, but plain, and with the aid of Mr. McConnell designed La Pompadour.

THE POMPADOUR EFFECT.

Bordering the roses is a fringe of lilies of the valley that falls over a ruche of blush pink chiffon spangled with crystal dewdrops. This is fitted into a holder of lace made of blush chiffon on which a lace design is painted in white. The latter is puffed and shirred and has the artistic French touch, which makes the new creation one of the most exquisite floral designs known. Tied around the stem is a broad pink satin ribbon, veiled with dewdrop chiffon, making a big bow with long ends.

"The Story of a Country Town,"

By E. W. HOWE, Editor of The Atchison Globe.

Edinburg Review: Western civilization in back country districts has been well drawn by Edward Eggleston, but with greater intensity and reserve power by E. W. Howe in "The Story of a Country Town."

New York World: We are not sure that we have not found the long sought "American novel" in "The Story of a Country Town." Fraser's magazine calls it "the Greatest American novel."

Letter from W. D. Howells: I wish to thank you for the great pleasure I have had in reading your "Story of a Country Town." It is a very remarkable piece of realism, and constitutes a part of the only literary movement of our time that seems to have vitality in it. I don't know how to tell you the impression the simple, naked humanness of the book gives me. It has faults, as any fool might say, but you have written a book so good that it will be hard for you to write a better. Upon your honest piece of work I give you my hand, with my heart in it.

Mark Twain: I believe this is the first time I have ever furnished an opinion about a book, but I like "The Story of a Country Town" so much that I am glad of a chance to say so. Howe's style is so simple, sincere, direct, and at the same time so clear and so strong, that I think it must have been born in him, not made. His picture of the arid village life, and the insides and outsides of its people, are vivid, and what is more true, I know, for I have seen it all and lived it all. "Big Adam" is a mighty figure in the procession of originals that is marching out of the ark of American literature to possess the land. When I read passages about "Big Adam" to Geo. W. Cable, he shouted, 'Superb! He is colossal!"

Charles Dudley Warner: The most remarkable novel of the year is "The Story of a Country Town." It well deserves the sensation it has created, on its own merits. The book is full of genuine humor and real pathos. The story is really dramatic. Without self consciousness, the author has wrought in the temper of a true artist. The book is one of the small number of genuine American books which cannot be left out when we reckon up our literature of fiction.

Joseph Hatton's London Correspondence of the Boston Herald: I find much satisfaction in going out of my way to commend to Americans "The Story of a Country Town." The Americans need no longer despair of a real characteristic native novelist. "The Story of a Country Town" is as purely American as "Nicholas Nickleby" is purely English.

Boston Traveler: Mr. Howe's book belongs to the class Hunt called "real literature." Here is new material for the discussion of the question as to what the American novel should be. Many a reader will finish the "Country Town" with tears in his eyes, who has read novels by the score every month, and only yawned when the last leaf was turned.

It is said that a big fight occurred in Rushville last night. Several men were playing cards in the abandoned jail in that town, and quarreled. The dispute ended with bloody noses and black eyes.

The Roger Murphy-Orlin Weed dance at Turner hall last night was a big success. It was attended by about forty couples. About half a dozen young men from St. Joe and Leavenworth attended the dance.

Thad B. Landon, a Kansas City lawyer who was "born and raised" north of Effingham, called M. J. Howard, another lawyer, a liar in Judge Slover's court in Kansas City yesterday morning, and a fight followed. In the rough and tumble, Landon came up on top. Judge Slover fined them $50 each.

Soldier Balks Death Plot.

It seemed to J. A. Stone, a Civil war veteran, of Kemp, Texas, that a plot existed between a desperate lung trouble and the grave to cause his death. "I contracted a stubborn cold," he writes, "that developed a cough that stuck to me, in spite of all remedies, for years. My weight ran down to 130 pounds. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, which restored by health completely. I now weigh 178 pounds." For severe Colds, obstinate Coughs, Hemorrhages, Asthma, and to prevent Pneumonia it's unrivaled. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Will May, of the Arcade theatre, and his bride of three weeks have parted. Mr. May told a reporter this morning that yesterday her husband packed his trunk, took the money from the cash drawer at the theatre and went to Kansas City. Mrs. May was Miss Eva Goff, of Topeka, before her marriage. She knew the groom only three months before she married him. He had a candy factory in Topeka, and she worked for him. Mrs. May says her husband loves an Atchison girl; that he has told her so, and that he married for spite. The Arcade theatre is in Mrs. May's name, she says, and she will continue to run it. She is a very pleasant young woman, and Mr. May is well thought of in Atchison. The mother of the young girl with whom Mr. May is said to be in love, told a reporter this morning that Mr. May was a Christian gentleman; that, until lately, he attended church every Sunday, and that he always wore white stars given for faithful attendance at Sunday school. The mother says that while May begged to marry her daughter, who is only 16, the girl didn't seem to care about marrying. May has a divorced wife and five children in Atchison.

An Atchison doctor was in a talkative mood. "In all my experience as a physician," he said, "I have found February and March the most trying months on the debilitated, tired, and rheumatic. These are the months that should be spent in Hot Springs, and do you know that the Missouri Pacific service there is perfect? Why, a man with a pain in every muscle could make the trip as easily as staying in bed at home!"

Railroad Affairs and Personal: The machine shop at the Central Branch shops is to be enlarged. According to the general foreman, a forty foot addition will be placed on the west end of the building, a twenty foot addition will be constructed on the east end, and two more engine pits will be provided. While the improvements will not be "extensive," they serve as an indication that the shops are not to be moved to St. Joe next week, as the St. Joe reporters would have us believe, and that there is a slight tendency on the part of the company toward improving its Atchison property. In other words, the additions to the machine shop may be followed by various other improvements. It is known that George W. Smith, the superintendent of Missouri Pacific machinery, is still begging the company for greater shops in Atchison....The Rock Island has decided to adopt steel cars for its passenger service. Sixty-nine of these cars are to be constructed at once. The company intends to expend one million dollars on steel cars....A new passenger coach has been brought to Atchison for service on the Central Branch....The Kansas City Times says: "The walkout of the surgeons of the Missouri Pacific hospital here suggests that the able medical staff objects to being treated the way George Gould treats the Central Branch." ...The Pollywog will take the "Land of Nod" theatrical company from Atchison to the Soldiers' home at Leavenworth Monday morning (Did you ever know that the government maintains a very fine theatre at the Soldiers' home? The veterans are admitted to this theatre without charge, as the government pays for the theatrical attractions)....A new lathe for the machine shop at the Central Branch shops arrived yesterday, and will soon be installed....Fred Rauber, the young man employed in the supply department at the shops, is attending to heart interests in St. Louis....Walter Joray, the boilermaker at the Central Branch shops, is sick....Marvin Allen, the timekeeper in the car department at the shops claims to be forty years old. We don't believe it; he doesn't look a day over thirty....Charles Smith has resigned his job in the car department at the shops, and will take a job at the Excelsior factory down town....Dan Armour has quit the wrecking crew at the shops. It is understood he will take a good job with the Armour Packing Co. It is said he is related to J. Ogden Armour, the packer, and has been knocking about the railroad shops just for the "experience."....The Central Branch wrecking crew is now working on the demolished car which is hanging over the east end of the coal chutes at the shops. When one end of the car plunged over the end of the chutes, the body of the car was broken in two exactly in the middle....Car Repairer Andrews has quit the Central Branch shops....Fay Kested, the mill man at the Central Branch shops, is laying off, on account of the illness of his wife. Ben Bertsen is doing his work in the mill....That freight car which was burned in the lower yards Wednesday afternoon, has been taken to the car department at the shops to be repaired....Ernest Childs, the engine dispatcher, who is sick, is somewhat better, and will probably return to the shops soon. For a time he was threatened with pneumonia....Engineer Wells, who has been running a switch engine in Kansas City, has come to Atchison to take a run out of this city....A Mr Ellsworth is a new Missouri Pacific fireman in Atchison. ....Engineers Reynolds, Moore, Raymond, O'Connor, LaCount, Terry, Clevenger, and Fireman Wycoff are laying off....Engineer Smith, Firemen Heatherly, Souser and Seeger are all sick and not at work....Fireman Morris is still laid up with injuries he received recently when he fell from his engine....Fireman Luff is unable to be at work on account of a bum finger....Engineer Cox is at Plattsmouth, Neb., attending a lawsuit to which the Missouri Pacific is a party. Supervisors Busby and Woods have moved their desks from the maintenance of way office building near the shops to the old ticket office building across the tracks from the union depot and the foremen of the Missouri Pacific water service, M. M. Munson and Noah Rentschler, will move to the ticket office building to-morrow, and will have the upstairs rooms. The office force under Division Engineer Paul Gentine will move from their rooms in the Fifth street building to the ticket office Tuesday of next week. The ticket office building was recently remodeled in the interior, and rendered suitable for office work.. Trainmaster Carden will occupy the rooms to be vacated by Mr. Gentine's office force, and Storekeeper Burgess will have his desk in the office room in the maintenance of way building near the shops....The Missouri Pacific will establish a water station at Wolf creek, on the Omaha division, and one at Farmington, on the Central Branch. ....Foreman Munson, of the Central Branch water service, is a real Yankee, but likes Dutch dishes....Tom Foley, a car department man at the shops, is a clever magician....John Johnson, the painter at the shops, has revealed himself. Years and years ago he was a very wealthy man back east, but lost his wealth by betting on the wrong horse. He came out west to regain his streak of luck....W. W. Griffin has returned to the car department at the shops, after several months' absence....Will Whaley, the wrecker, went home sick yesterday.. Frank Davidson, who formerly was "checker" in the car department, at the shops, has left the employ of the Frisco at Kansas City, and no one in Atchison knows his whereabouts now. ....Young Keefer, who has been a section man, is a new man in the car department at the shops....Peter Burke, the engine painter, continues to be quite ill. He lives in Branchton.
